From George Simpson's Character Book - 1832:

Chief Trader No.10

About 45 years of Age. A trifling thoughtless superficial lying creature, who has no Steadiness or consistancy, full of plans which are more changeable than the Wind: has sufficient address to pass himself off as a sharp fellow with a Stranger, but is entirely an Eye Servant and cannot be entrusted with any business requiring the least management unless closely Watched. Can make himself agreeable to Indians until they discover his falsehood which must very soon be the case, as he is totally regardless of truth, in fact, a habitual Liar without conduct or principle, and was becoming so much addicted to Liquor that I found it necessary to remove him a few years ago to one of our most Sober Stations."
