

EAST SIDE PLANNING INITIATIVE

Parks & Recreation Activities

Manitoba formally designates areas parks and protected areas to protect biological diversity and provide recreational opportunities for Manitobans. The East Side Initiative will consider views on the expansion of protected areas within the region.

Many residents want to learn more about the potential eco-tourism offers for the creation of jobs and business opportunities within the area.

Eco-tourism and tourism development in general have been identified as economic activities with important potential for job creation.

Eco-tourism and tourism development in general have been identified as economic activities with important potential for job creation.

The market overlap between eco-tourists and tourists interested in other cultures could have other important spin-offs in the area, including activities related to aboriginal culture.

The market overlap between eco-tourists and tourists interested in other cultures could have other important spin-offs in the area, including activities related to aboriginal culture.

Some residents want land use plans to recognize special locations where residents engage in traditional activities such as picking berries or mushrooms, or harvest of plants for traditional medicines.

Some residents want land use plans to take into account special locations where residents engage in traditional activities such as picking berries or mushrooms, or harvest of plants for traditional medicines.

