New displays in the Reading Room and the Library

History of Aviation in Manitoba

From the Avro Arrow, to stories of pilots and aviation workers, to our iconic new international airport, Manitoba has a rich and varied history in the aviation industry. New displays in both the Reading Room in the Legislative Building and in the entry to the Main Library at 200 Vaughan Street highlight this history.

Visit the Reading Room in the Legislative Building for a display on the history of aviation in Manitoba, and the Main Library for a display honouring the contributions of women to the aviation industry.

The promise of Canada : 150 years—people and ideas that have shaped our country / Charlotte Gray.
Toronto : Simon & Schuster Canada, 2016. xix, 378 pages, 32 unnumbered pages of plates.

From the publisher:

“There is no master narrative for Canadian history; there are too many stories to package into a tidy-tightly scripted identity. Yet Canada exerts a sense of endless promise because over the years it has successfully managed so many competing pressures—parallel identities, layers of allegiance, rooted hostilities, overlapping loyalties...Our country owes its success not to some imagined tribal singularity but to the fact that, although its thirty-five million citizens do not look, speak or pray alike, we have learned to share this land and for the most part live in neighbourly sympathy.” — Charlotte Gray, from the preface of The Promise of Canada.

On the eve of Canada’s sesquicentennial celebrations comes a richly rewarding new book from acclaimed historian Charlotte Gray about what it means to be Canadian. Readers already know Gray as an award-winning biographer, a writer who has brilliantly captured significant individuals and dramatic moments in our history. Now, in The Promise of Canada, she weaves together masterful portraits of nine influential Canadians, creating an engaging history of the country over the past 150 years and arguing that Canada has constantly reimagined itself in every generation since 1867. [...]

A fresh take on our history that offers fascinating insights into how this country has matured and how—150 years after Confederation and beyond—we are still a people in progress, The Promise of Canada will inspire and challenge readers to envision the Canada they want to live in. Charlotte Gray makes history come alive as she opens doors into our past, our present and our future.

Waiting for first light : my ongoing battle with PTSD / Roméo Dallaire with Jessica Dee Humphreys.
Toronto : Random House Canada, 2016. xvii, 185 pages.

From the publisher:

At the heart of Waiting for First Light is a no-holds-barred self-portrait of a top political and military figure whose nights are invaded by despair, but who at first light faces the day with the renewed desire to make a difference in the world.

Roméo Dallaire, traumatized by witnessing genocide on an imponderable scale in Rwanda, reflects in these pages on the nature of PTSD and the impact of that deep wound on his life since 1994, and on how he motivates himself and others to humanitarian work despite his constant struggle. Though he had been a leader in peace and in war at all levels up to deputy commander of the Canadian Army, his PTSD led to his medical dismissal from the Canadian Forces in April 2000, a blow that almost killed him. But he crawled out of the hole he fell into after he had to take off the uniform, and he has been inspiring people to give their all to multiple missions ever since, from ending genocide to eradicating the use of child soldiers to revolutionizing officer training so that our soldiers can better deal with the muddy reality of modern conflict zones and to revolutionizing our thinking about the changing nature of conflict itself.

Invisible north : the search for answers on a troubled reserve / Alexandra Shimo. Toronto : Dundurn, 2016. 174 pages.

From PW Annex Reviews: What begins as a journalist's journey to discover the roots of a remote First Nations water crisis becomes a gripping first-person account of an outsider's short but intense experience of the brutal conditions that are daily life for many First Nations communities in Canada. Shimo's time in the northern Ontario Kashechewan reserve—a place that drew international attention in 2005 for abominable living conditions—serves as a microcosm of the obstacles First Nations face when the catch-22s of Indian Act provisions stunt economic development and condemn successive generations to despair and suicide rates that are among the highest in the world. Shimo, no stranger to these issues, barely contains a palpable anger, as each injustice she witnesses firsthand becomes the springboard for a deeper exploration of the social, historical, and political roots of a reality that encompasses annual flood-induced evacuations, mold-encrusted housing, astronomical food prices, and a war-zone atmosphere that leaves her with post-traumatic stress disorder. Her work can be painful to read, but, like other literature on reconciliation, it's a necessary contribution to addressing age-old wrongs.

Big worlds : politics and elections in the Canadian provinces and territories / edited by Jared J. Wesley.

Toronto : University of Toronto Press, 2016. xxxvi, 267 pages.

From the publisher.

The contributors to Big Worlds examine Canada's ten provinces and three territories as distinct, democratic "worlds." A separate chapter is devoted to each province (one chapter explores the three territories), creating a cross-country survey of politics and elections. Tracing the history of each provincial and territorial system, with special attention to the twenty-first century, and drawing on the "worlds" theme, each chapter addresses the "terrain" (political culture, political economy, and political institutions) and the "climate" (party system, civic culture, and democratic deficits) of Canada's provinces and territories.

From the publisher.

Although her name today is synonymous with the women's suffrage movement in Canada, Nellie McClung's long and varied career covered several fields—from social activist to elected politician, from novelist to journalist. McClung was instrumental in Canadian women gaining the right to vote before their British and American counterparts—2016 marks the one-hundred-year anniversary of women's suffrage in Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan, and British Columbia. She was also one of the Famous Five who in 1929 successfully petitioned a change in the British North America Act to include women as "persons," thereby allowing them to serve in the Senate. McClung was a household name by the time she was elected to the Legislative Assembly of Alberta in 1921, a post she held for five years.

When she settled on Vancouver Island in 1932, McClung was a highly esteemed public figure who had not only changed Canada's political landscape and influenced women's rights worldwide but had also raised five children and written a dozen best-selling books. From her beloved Island home, Lantern Lane, McClung continued to speak out against social injustice and inequality. In the late 1930s, she began to write a syndicated weekly newspaper column that served as social commentary for the years leading up to World War II. The Valiant Nellie McClung highlights a selection of those columns—covering themes as grave as war, as fundamental as the strength of the family unit, and as whimsical as the pleasure of gardening—and offers a unique reflection of our country's history and an uncanny resonance today.
