

YES. THIS WAS ONCE A MINE.

Bill's Lake is nestled deep in a reclaimed landscape in the oil sands region of northern Alberta. This wetland area features willow-lined shores where waterfowl nest, a larch forest and grassy uplands. Abundant raspberries feed visiting bears. For Canada's mining companies, reclaiming the land we borrow is not just a legal obligation, it's a responsibility we take as seriously as creating jobs, building vibrant communities and generating billions of dollars in tax revenues.
