
Wabowden

Community Overview

History

Wabowden, situated near the geographic centre of the province, was first located at Setting Lake which is part of the historic Grass River fur trade route. With the arrival of the railway in the 1920s, the community relocated to its present site on Bowden Lake. Because of its existence for some 100 years, family structures are well developed and social functions are continual. The community finds strength in being populated by people of many diverse backgrounds, although the métis culture is dominant. Many families originated from Cross Lake, so there are strong historic ties to that community. Quality of life is exceptional, because of the excellent water supply, low air pollution, adequate housing, excellent educational facilities and ongoing recreational programming.

Access

Wabowden is 111 kilometres (km) southwest of Thompson and 640 km north of Winnipeg along Provincial Trunk Highway 6.

Governance

The community is represented by a mayor and council under The Northern Affairs Act.

Economic Overview

Wabowden is located in the southern part of the nickel belt. A number of ore bodies are known to exist near the community. Manibridge Nickel Mine operated from 1970 to 1976. When this mine was operational, the population was over 1,000. In 1972, a logging operation was started at Sipiwesk, 16 km west of Wabowden, providing wood to the pulp mill in The Pas. The timber harvest was an important industry. The opening of the Bucko Lake Mine in 2003 by Crowflight Minerals injected the community with new life and is no longer in operation. Pre-selling of ore has enabled Crowflight to continue to operate even in the current down trends in world markets. Crowflight Minerals Inc. has retained Dumas Mining Contractors to run the site. Some employees have moved to Wabowden, some are rotational employees, while others are mining contractors. Crowflight Minerals operates a housing camp that holds 120 employees. The community council, Crowflight Minerals Inc. and University College of the North (UCN) joined forces and have mining training in the community which is being attended not only by locals, but by others from outlying communities. Wabowden is also situated in the Wabowden Clay Belt, an agricultural zone with some potential for agricultural applications. An agriculture research station operated from 1956 to 1965 to assess soil fertility and plant adaptability in mid-northern Manitoba. Commercial fishing continues to be one of the major sources of employment. The Wabowden fish station serves the communities of Wabowden, Nelson House, Thicket Portage, Cross Lake, Snow Lake, Pikwitonei and Herb Lake Landing, all of which have access to the Nelson and Grass River watershed areas. The area connection with the Freshwater Fish Marketing Corporation provides valuable facilities and creates seasonal employment. Trappers in the Wabowden Registered Trapline Zone produce additional income for the economy.
