4-H Manitoba

What is 4-H?
4-H is an international youth and volunteer organization, that started in Canada in Roland, Manitoba in 1913.
4-H programs give youth many opportunities for personal growth. They help build self-confidence, responsibility, and leadership skills that last a lifetime!
Each member picks a project and works with a volunteer leader, to develop skills related to the project. There are 20 topic areas including beef, photography, outdoor living, machines, and crafts!
Today 4-H Clubs are active in communities across Manitoba, driven by thousands of 4-H members and volunteers, plus a strong partnership with Manitoba Agriculture, Food and Rural Initiatives (MAFRI) and Manitoba 4-H Council (MMHC).

What are the Four H's?
The 4 H's are HEAD, HEART, HEALTH AND HANDS.
They are part of the 4-H pledge:
I pledge:
My HEAD to clearer thinking,
My HEART to greater loyalty,
My HANDS to larger service,
My HEALTH to better living,
For my club, my community,
and my country.

The 4-H Motto
"LEARN TO DO BY DOING" is the foundation of all 4-H projects and is a common theme throughout many Club, Provincial, and National 4-H programs.

BENEFITS of 4-H
Leadership—Members build leadership skills by running meetings.
Goal-Setting—Members choose their project and learn to set goals by creating a project plan.
Responsibility—Members learn responsibility by serving on committees and as executive officers of the club.
Problem-Solving—Finishing project work teaches members to problem solve.
Life Skills—Hands-on project work, public speaking opportunities, and teamwork build valuable life skills.
Communication Skills—Members gain public speaking, presentation and written communication skills through club activities and competitions.
Teamwork—Members learn to work both on their own and in a team as they complete project work and community service activities with their club.

"I disliked public speaking when I was a beginning member. Now I realize that without 4-H I wouldn't have learned to speak confidently in public, and I wouldn't have the self-assurance I do today."
"4-H has helped me so much. I'm only starting to realize all of the things I've learned and how many skills I've developed."

Water without borders? : Canada, the United States and shared waters / edited by Emma S. Norman, Alice Cohen, and Karen Bakker. Toronto : University of Toronto Press, 2013. xiv, 275 p.
HD 1696 .C2 Wat

From University of Toronto Press:

Since 1909, the waters along the Canada-US border have been governed in accordance with the Boundary Water Treaty, but much has changed in the last 100 years. This engaging volume brings together experts from both sides of the border to examine the changing relationship between Canada and the US with respect to shared waters, as well as the implications of these changes for geopolitics and the environment. Water without Borders? is a timely publication given the increased attention to shared water issues, and particularly because 2013 is the United Nations International Year of Water Cooperation.

Water without Borders? is designed to help readers develop a balanced understanding of the most pressing shared water issues between Canada and the United States. The contributors explore possible frictions between governance institutions and contemporary management issues, illustrated through analyses of five specific transboundary water flashpoints. The volume offers both a historical survey of transboundary governance mechanisms and a forward-looking assessment of new models of governance that will allow us to manage water wisely in the future.

How we lead : Canada in a century of change / Joe Clark. Toronto : Random House Canada, 2013. 273 p.
FC 242 Cla

From the Toronto Star:

Joe Clark's How We Lead is like the honorable man: thoughtful, intelligent, a tad dry but worth the effort. With its descriptions of non-governmental organizations that once provided aid without a fat moral strap and a country once deeply involved in social issues, it's a nostalgic book.

It's as if the former Progressive Conservative prime minister is describing a country that existed long ago, far away and fading fast from memory.

Clark documents a sea change in Canadian policy under Stephen Harper that includes switching the focus of foreign aid from poverty to trade and ditching the Kyoto Protocol on climate change. [...] In Clark's view, Canada is a nation that increasingly draws the blinds and shuts the door on the world. [...] Clark praises Harper strategies such as the commitment to a long engagement in Afghanistan and an emphasis on respected military and trade initiatives, but cautions they are only part of the equation. Why, he asks, would Canada give up its role as "consensus builder" when other nations are only now moving to the Canadian model?

"Canada now talks more than we act and our tone is almost adolescent — forceful, certain, enthusiastic, combative, full of sound and fury." [...]

Clark the politician always seemed outgunned by Mulroney or Peter MacKay. But he's found his niche as the conscience of a nation that may be losing its soul. He doesn't throw around such allegations in How We Lead. Instead it's the seemingly inescapable conclusion of rows of assembled facts that make an unpleasant point about our government and our passive selves.

Who would have thought that Joe Clark could turn out to be Canada's Cassandra?

Faking It! : A History of Counterfeiting in Canada / James Powell and Jill Moxley. Renfrew, Ontario : General Store Publishing House, 2013. xi, 161 pages. HG 336 .C2 Pow

From General Store Publishing House:

Counterfeiting is as old as money itself, and tales of the cunning criminals that try to outsmart the system have always enthralled us. This richly illustrated book introduces the reader to the history of the crime and some of the grisly punishments meted out in the past. It explores the “arms race” between the issuers of money and the counterfeiters, as well as cases of official counterfeiting in wartime.

The focus then moves to Canada’s experience with bogus bills and coins from the seventeenth century to the present day. While emphasizing that counterfeiting is not a victimless crime, the authors present fascinating case studies and profiles of the criminals and their adversaries.

Today, the Bank of Canada and the RCMP are the front line in the fight to maintain confidence in Canada’s currency. The changing face of bank note security is examined, culminating with the new polymer notes, and major counterfeiting busts by the RCMP are highlighted. The book wraps up with a look at the new frontier of counterfeiting crime: fraud involving credit and debit cards and electronic payment systems.

Faking It! Read this enjoyable introduction to the world of bank note security and the constant struggle to protect the money in your pocket.

Northscapes : history, technology, and the making of northern environments / edited by Dolly Jørgensen and Sverker Sörlin. Vancouver : UBC Press, 2013. 307 pages. G 606 Nor

From Book News:

Jørgensen and Sörlin edit this volume on northern landscape, climate, and culture, with a focus on the built environments integrated into harsh natural environments by humans. The first part of the book focuses on discovery, exploration, and colonization of the Alaskan, Canadian, Russian, and Scandinavian north. Art, natural history, and technology used in probing and making the places habitable are discussed as they changed over time. The second part moves into the operation of society, economics, culture, and social/artistic imagination in established northern settlements.

Deputy ministers in Canada : comparative and jurisdictional perspectives / edited by Jacques Bourgault and Christopher Dunn. Toronto ; Buffalo ; London : University of Toronto Press, 2014. xvi, 456 pages. JL 111 .E93 Dep

From University of Toronto Press:

Collectively, provincial deputy ministers command the largest assembly of government budgets, employees, and influence in Canada, but despite their importance, they have not been the subject of systematic study until now. This unique volume, which deals with a uniquely significant topic, reviews the role of deputy ministers within government, providing a major new understanding of their responsibilities and interactions at both the federal and provincial levels. It also contributes important comparative analysis not previously available.

Featuring contributions by many of Canada’s most prominent scholars of public administration, Deputy Ministers in Canada examines a number of factors in the evolution of deputies’ roles. Taking into account social, political, and administrative history, the essays probe topics such as the socio-economic characteristics of administrative elites, the politicization of recruitment processes, the impact of New Public Management, and varieties of ministerial-bureaucratic relations. Together, the essays in Deputy Ministers in Canada make an important contribution to the political science and public administration literature.
