Spotlight on: The Criddle/Vane Homestead

The Criddle/Vane Homestead is a Manitoba provincial park, located in southwestern Manitoba about 40 kilometres southeast of Brandon. The Criddle and Vane families are Manitoba pioneers well-known for their contributions in the fields of science, art, sports, and culture, as well as for their somewhat eccentric lifestyle. The site includes the remaining structure of the first entomological field station in western Canada, a cemetery, old foundations, and the remains of original landscape features such as the family tennis courts and a golf course.

The Manitoba Legislative Library's collection includes family memoirs written by members of the Criddle/Vane families, a rare 1913 Department of Agriculture Canada plant guide illustrated by Norman Criddle, as well as an interpretive park map and a self-guiding trail booklet for visitors to the Criddle/Vane homestead.

Librarian's Picks

Contagious representation : women's political representation in democracies around the world / Frank C. Thames, Margaret S. Williams. New York : NYU Press, 2013. x, 174 pages.
HQ 1236 Tha

From NYU Press:

Women's participation in parliaments, high courts, and executive offices worldwide has reached record high numbers, but this global increase in women's representation masks significant variation among different democratic political systems. For example, in December of 2009, Rwanda's legislature contained 56% women, while the U.S. Congress contained only about 17% and the Japanese Diet had only 11%. Since 2000, only twenty-seven women have achieved executive office worldwide.

Contagious Representation is a comprehensive look at women's participation in all aspects of public life in the main democratic political institutions—the executive, the judiciary, the legislature, and within political parties.

Moving beyond studies of single countries and institutions, Contagious Representation presents original data from 159 democratic countries spanning 50 years, providing a comprehensive understanding of women in democracies worldwide. The first volume to offer an analysis on all avenues for women's participation for such a lengthy time period, Contagious Representation examines not only the causes of women's representation in the main democratic political institutions but also how women's representation in one institution affects the others. Each chapter contains case studies and examples of the change in women's participation over time from around the world. Thames and Williams definitively explain the rise, decline, or stagnant levels of women's political participation, considering how representation is contagious across political institutions and gaining a better understanding of what factors affect women's political participation.

The politics of public money / David A. Good. Second edition. Toronto ; Buffalo ; London : University of Toronto Press, 2014. xviii, 396 pages.
HJ 793 Goo

From the University of Toronto Press:

Public money is one of the primary currencies of influence for politicians and public servants. It affects the standards by which they undertake the nation's business and impacts the standard of living of the nation's citizens. David A. Good's The Politics of Public Money examines the extent to which the Canadian federal budgetary process is shifting from one based on a bilateral relationship between departmental spenders and central guardians to one based on a more complex, multilateral relationship involving a variety of players.

This new edition offers an up-to-date account of the Canadian system, including the creation of the Parliamentary Budget Officer, the government's response to the global financial crisis, Canada's Economic Action Plan, strategic and operating reviews, the most recent attempts to reform the Estimates, and much more.

An insightful and incisive study of the changing budgetary process, The Politics of Public Money examines the promises and pitfalls of budgetary reform and sheds new light on the role insiders play in influencing government spending.

Future jobs : solving the employment and skills crisis / Edward E. Gordon ; foreword by Kevin Hollenbeck. Santa Barbara, Calif. : Praeger, 2013. xxii, 203 pages. HD 5724 Gor

From Choice Reviews:

Gordon, a business consultant, examines how the US can reduce workforce skills shortages by offering comprehensive regional solutions. In the book's first part, he discusses jobs that will be in high demand in the digital age, including science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM) occupations along with research and development, information technology, operations, management, and sales. Gordon also addresses issues contributing to labor shortages, such as baby boomer retirements, fixation on short-term profits, educational mediocrity, the high school dropout rate, and an increasing gap between worker skills and job requirements. Gordon supports Regional Talent Innovation Networks (RETAINs) as a means of coordinating various community sectors to match "skills and jobs to regional economic development." [...] Appendixes include an occupational desirability scorecard, a human capital return on investment worksheet, and a list of career academies.

"Métis" : race, recognition, and the struggle for indigenous peoplehood / Chris Andersen. Vancouver : UBC Press, 2014. xiv, 267 pages. FC 109 And

From UBC Press:

Ask any Canadian what "Métis" means, and they will likely say "mixed race." Canadians consider Métis mixed in ways that other indigenous people are not, and the census and courts have premised their recognition of Métis status on this race-based understanding. Andersen argues that Canada got it wrong. From its roots deep in the colonial past, the idea of "Métis as mixed" has slowly pervaded the Canadian consciousness until it settled in the realm of common sense. In the process, "Métis" has become a racial category rather than the identity of an indigenous people with a shared sense of history and culture.

Dynamic fair dealing : creating Canadian culture online / edited by Rosemary J. Coombe, Darren Wershler, and Martin Zeilinger. Toronto : University of Toronto Press, 2014. viii, 442 pages. KE 2799 Dyn

From McNally Robinson:

Dynamic Fair Dealing presents a range of insightful and provocative essays that rethink our relationship to Canadian fair dealing policy. With contributions from scholars, activists, and artists from across disciplines, professions, and creative practices, this book explores the extent to which copyright has expanded into every facet of society and reveals how our capacities to actually deal fairly with cultural goods has suffered in the process. In order to drive conversations about the cultural worlds Canadians imagine, and the policy reforms we need to realize these visions, we need Dynamic Fair Dealing.
