

Trade of Electrologist Regulation Update

On December 18, 2020, the Manitoba government amended the trade regulation for the trade of Electrologist, Manitoba Regulation 163/2020. The following details the changes that have been made to the regulation and are effective beginning December 18, 2020.

Authorization to Practise

Effective December 18, 2020, the Authorization to Practise will no longer be issued to individuals who work in the trade. Authorizations to Practise that were valid prior to December 18, 2020, will remain valid, even if an expiry date is identified.

These Authorizations to Practise will continue to be recognized as a permit to work in the trade. Alternatively, certification in the trade or a temporary permit will continue to be issued to individuals who do not have a valid Authorization to Practise and who are seeking employment in the trade of Electrologist.

Commonly Asked Question

My Authorization to Practise expired on January 1, 2021. Will I receive a new Authorization to Practise?

If your Authorization to Practise was valid on December 17, 2020, it remains valid and does not need to be replaced. You can continue to use your expired Authorization to Practise to work in the trade.

For the regulation update, see web2.gov.mb.ca/laws/regs/index_annual.php. For more information on the apprenticeship and certification system, please visit the Apprenticeship Manitoba office nearest to you or visit our website at www.manitoba.ca/tradecareers.