

Canada-Manitoba Job Grant Frequently Asked Questions

Canada-Manitoba Job Grant Explained

1. What is the Canada-Manitoba Job Grant?

The Job Grant provides funding to employers to help cover the cost of training their new and existing employees to meet business needs, and to provide Manitobans with the skills they need for available jobs. Training must be delivered by an external third party. Employers decide which of their employees need training, the training they need, who will deliver the training, and when it will occur.

2. Why is it called the Canada-Manitoba Job Grant?

Through Labour Market Development Transfer Agreements, the federal government transfers funds to all of the provinces and territories to help them deliver programs to develop their labour force. The Job Grant is a Manitoba program that is funded under one of these Transfer Agreements.

3. Why do the federal and provincial governments provide this funding?

- Employers depend on their employees to achieve business and organization goals.
- A skilled labour force is one of the keys to economic development.
- It plays important roles in attracting offshore companies, supporting expansion of Manitoba businesses, and supporting new business creation.
- Canada and Manitoba believe that developing the labour force is a shared responsibility among many stakeholders including employers, unions, industry associations, post-secondary institutions, employees themselves, and others.

- Companies with 101 or more employees can apply for up to 50% of eligible training costs.
- Employers can apply for up to a maximum amount of $10,000 per training participant.
- Maximum Job Grant amount regardless of number of trainees and cost of training is $100,000.

2. What costs are eligible for funding?

- Tuition fees or fees charged by an external training provider
- Mandatory student fees
- Textbooks, software and other required materials
- Examination fees

3. Are travel costs to attend training eligible for funding?

- Travel costs are not usually eligible for funding. However, if training is not available locally or online, and training participants are located in northern or remote communities, employers may be eligible for reimbursement of a portion of required travel and accommodations costs.
- The amount of travel and accommodations costs reimbursed is negotiated and is not guaranteed.
- Manitoba government rates are used to determine the eligible travel and accommodations amount.
- The amount that an employer is reimbursed for travel and accommodations costs cannot exceed the percentage at which all other eligible costs are reimbursed. For example, the maximum amount that a small company (100 or fewer employees) would be reimbursed is 75% of the total travel and accommodations costs; the maximum amount that companies with more than 100 employees would be reimbursed is 50% of the total travel and accommodations costs.

- The maximum Job Grant amount, including travel and accommodations costs, will not exceed $100,000.
- When submitting their Job Grant application, employers should indicate in their email that they wish to apply for travel costs and provide documentation that shows the training is either not available online and training participants must travel more than 100 km to attend the training. A Consultant will contact them to determine travel expense eligibility and provide travel expense guidelines.

4. What costs are ineligible for funding?

- Expenses for internal training delivered by a company employee
- Wages of employees while in training

5. Our company's employees pay for their own training and once they pass, we reimburse them for the training costs. Is the invoice provided by the training provider to the employee eligible under the Job Grant if it is signed by the employer as being paid?

In some cases, the answer is yes, and in others, the answer is no. For example, if an employee is pursuing a college or university certificate/degree that is unrelated to the employer's skills requirements and business needs, tuition costs are ineligible. Contact Industry Workforce Development to discuss this further.

To be eligible for training costs initially paid for by an employee, employers must submit documentation showing the training cost is paid, and that the employee has been reimbursed for the training cost.

6. Can our company apply for a Job Grant for training that has already taken place?

Employers can apply for the Job Grant for training that has already occurred as long as the training took place in the same fiscal year in which the application is submitted. The fiscal year is April 1-March 31.

Example: a company trained its employees in February and May, 2020 and applied for the Job Grant in June, 2020. The May, 2020 training is eligible for the Job Grant as it occurred in the same fiscal year as the Job Grant application. The February training is not eligible as it occurred in the prior fiscal year.

7. Can our company include training in our Job Grant application that was paid for prior to the start of the current fiscal year, but that is taking place in the current fiscal year?

Yes

8. Can our company include training in our Job Grant application that is paid for in this fiscal year, but that is not taking place until the next fiscal year?

No. The Job Grant application is for training that occurs in the current fiscal year.

9. Is there any funding available for training delivered by a company employee? For example, training on proprietary processes and equipment?

Employers can apply for funding for internally delivered training under the Workforce Development Program. Information on this program is located here:

Training Eligibility

1. What training is eligible for funding?

- Training delivered by an external training provider; i.e., university, college or private vocational institute, private consultant or company, industry association, sector council, union hall, etc.
- Training that an employer deems necessary to equip employees with new skills and/or knowledge to meet business goals; e.g., increased productivity, entry into new markets, increased sales, etc.

Subsidiaries, Franchises and Companies with Multiple Locations

1. Can a company with employees working at two or more locations in Manitoba include employees from all locations in one application?

Yes

2. Can a company that has one or more subsidiaries apply for a Job Grant to train employees from several of its subsidiaries or do each of the subsidiaries have to apply for the Job Grant?

A parent company can apply for the Job Grant to train employees working in Manitoba in one or more of its subsidiaries.

3. ABC Company has 150 employees. XYZ Company, a subsidiary of ABC Company, has 65 employees. Can XYZ Company be classified as a small employer?

No, the subsidiary does not qualify as a small employer.

4. Can an employer who owns a franchise of a national chain apply for the Job Grant as a small company?

Yes, if the franchise has 100 or fewer employees. A franchise owner is a separate company that pays a franchise fee to the national chain in order to operate the company. Many franchise owners face the same challenges as a non-franchise small employer, and unlike a subsidiary of a larger company, cannot draw on the fiscal resources of the national chain.

Companies with Employees Working and/or Living in Other Provinces

1. If a Manitoba company employs workers who reside and work in Alberta, can it include their Alberta employees in their Manitoba Job Grant application?

No. If the employees reside and work in Alberta, the company should contact the Alberta government for information on training funding availability.

Yes. If the employees' permanent residence is in another country, however, they cannot be included in the application.

3. If a company is located in another province or country, but employs individuals who work in Manitoba, can it apply for funding to train its Manitoba employees?

If it is licensed to operate in Manitoba, and holds a Manitoba business number, the company can apply for Job Grant funding. Training participants must be employees of the company, and not contract workers.

Job Grant Payment to Employers

1. How and when does our company get actual payment of the Job Grant?

- Prior to payment:
 - Employers must submit the following:
 - Training Plan Report
 - Training Evaluation
 - Proof of payment of eligible training costs (e.g., invoice and cancelled cheque; invoice and PayPal receipt, etc.)
- Upon successful review of these documents, Manitoba issues payment to the employer

2. An employee who participated in training funded by the Job Grant left the company prior to the employer submitting its expenses for reimbursement. Can the employer include the expenses for the employee who left and does the employer have to submit a Privacy Notice and Consent Form for that employee?

- The expenses can be included, but a consent form is not required. If there is a fixed price for the training, regardless of the number of trainees, the fixed price should be divided amongst all trainees (including the employee who left the company) to get a per/trainee cost so that no trainee is penalized for a higher training cost because the price is divided amongst fewer trainees.
- Employers should indicate on the training plan that the employee left the company prior to completing the training.
